2002 MAZDA PROTEGÉ 5
THE FEELING
IS FAMILIAR. THE CAR ISN’T.
Think mountain bike in full gravity mode. Think skateboard raking across a vertical concrete wall. Think, for that matter, everything else that’s ever connected you emotionally to this basic principle of physics: Motion can be a really, really good thing.
Somewhere between zero and cruising speed, you remember why it was worth it to stand in line last summer for one ride on that screaming new coaster. Only this time the lines are the painted kind, zipping through your side mirror as you steer the Mazda Protegé5 through endless sweeps of fresh pavement. Scream if you’d like, but hand-raising is strictly for passengers.

Wherever you see the symbol, you can get the whole story on our interactive Web site.

Our designers realized from the beginning that you’ll spend a lot more time inside the Mazda Protegé eating up pavement than you will admiring it in your driveway. That’s why they gave as much emphasis and thought to the interior as they did the outside. How it looks and feels. Where the controls are. The shifter that’s right where you drop your hand. All the thoughtful details that activate the little voice inside you that says, “Hop in, and pick a road.”

YOU GET INSIDE IT. IT GETS INSIDE YOU.
What we have here is a sporty car with a built-in social life. You may want to bring along some friends, as the Mazda Protege5's attention-magnet styling and versatile interior generate more enthusiasm than one person can handle. Three fit comfortably in the rear seat. And when it's your turn to carry the gear for your weekly roller hockey fix, pop the rear liftgate and drop one or both sides of the 60/40 split rear seatback. Then just load away...and you're gone.
